Diversity of Opinion Among Supreme Court Justices Suggests Need of For Serious Consideration.

Recently the American Federationist ook occasion to discuss and commend the resolution adopted by the Norfolk convention of the American Federation of Labor which urges upon congress the enactment of a law providing that the courts created by congress-that is, all courts inferior and intermediateshall be deuled the power to declare unconstitutional any law passed by congress and that the sole authority to pass upon the constitutionality of enacted laws shall be vested in the supreme court of the United States and that unless it shall be the unanimous decision and opinion of that court the law shall stand unless repealed by a bsequent congress.

It will be remembered that the last session of the Fifty-ninth congress passed a law commonly known as the (Mr. Hugo Schonberg, of Wilton, Wis., employers' liability law. It is true has had the following verses printed on this law applied exclusively to employees of the railroads engaged in interstate commerce, but it was the beginning and entering wedge in the establishment of a right principle. An employee was killed upon one of the railroads, and suit was entered by his heirs for recovery of damages. A federal circuit court declared the law unconstitutional. From this decision an appeal was taken to the supreme court of the United States. That court, after hearing the argument and considering the briefs, declared the employers' liability inw unconstitutional.

Though the supreme court sustained this contention of the lower court, it is not amiss to call attention to the fact that the supreme court, consisting of nine justices, the majority-that is, five of them-agreed upon the decision of the unconstitutionality of the law, and four voted and expressed their views of its constitutionality, that it was not repugnant to the constitution of the United States.

It is additionally interesting to know that of the five justices who declared the law unconstitutional two of them acreed upon one line of reasoning and three on another upon which their conclusion was reached. The four justices who dissented from the majority opinion and decision rendered three different and dissenting opinions.

When the highest court of our country, the supreme court of the United States, composed of some of the very best jurists in all the country, so vitally differ both in the majority and minority opinions and in the decision is It not time that the people and the congress of the United States should take this serious and important matter under consideration and remedy a most deplorable condition?

Is a law passed by congress, approved by the president of the United States in compliance with an enlightened public sentiment and in response to the needs of the people, to be nolens volens declared unconstit notice of our people?

Of course labor is not and will not | maker, declaring the employers' liability law appointed first assistant postmaster unconstitutional. Already efforts have general, is fifty years of age and of will be followed by labor in all in- tions for efficient service. stopped and must not be hampered in their fullest development and fruition. There are many old conceptions of the law and of the common law which must conform to the era, to the Zeitgeist.

The tollers have the right to insist that their lives, their conditions and their interests be given further and better consideration and protection by expressed statute law and that the broadest and most liberal interpretation be placed upon such laws; that the courts created by congress shall be deprived of their power to declare unconstitutional the laws enacted by their creator, the congress of the United States, and that the United States suconstitutional a law enacted by two co-ordinate branches of the government of the United States, the congress and the president, unless there be unajustified in holding that a law shall not be annulled and shall not be held to be repugnant to the constitution of our country when the opinions of that highest tribunal are so diverse and hopelessly divided. This matter deserves the serious discussion and consideration of all our people, whether they be wage earners or others .-American Federationist.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide .

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of New-bro's Herpicide, April 6, '89, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery-destroy the cause and you re-move the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandwiff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 19c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
